- Fair silver buxins' nymphs,
I know this quest of yours and free intent
Was all in honour and devotion meant.
To the great mistress of your princely shrine. Milton.
An aged man in rural weeds,
Following, as seem'd, the quest of some stray ewe. Milton.
One for all Myself expose, with lonely steps to tread
Th' unfounded deep, and the void immense
To search with wand'ring quest a place foretold
Should be. Milton's Paradise Lost, b. ii.
Since first break of dawn, the fiend,
Mere serpent in appearance, forth was come,
And on his quest, where likeliest he might find
The only two of mankind. Milton.
I would be not strange, should we find Paradise at this day where Adam left it; and I the rather note this, because I see there are some so earnest in quest of it. Woodward.
There's not an African,
That traverses our vast Numidian deserts
In quest of prey, and lives upon his bow,
But better practises these boasted virtues. Addison's Cato.
We see them active and vigilant in quest of delight. Speck.
2. [For inquest.] An empanell'd jury.
Where is the evidence, that doth accuse me?
What lawful quest have given their verdict up Unto the frowning judge. Shakespeare, Richard III.

You have been hotly call'd for,
When, being not at your lodging to be found,
The fenate sent above three several quests
To search you out. Shakespeare, Othello.
4. Enquiry; examination.
O place and greatness! millions of false eyes
Are stuck upon thee; volumes of report
Run with these false and most contrarious quests
Upon thy doings. Shakespeare, Measure for Measure.
5. Request; desire; solicitation.
Gad not abroad at every quest and call
Of an untrained hope or passion. Herbert.
To QUEST. v. n. [from quester, Fr. from the noun.] To go in search.
QUESTANT. n. f. [from quester, Fr.] Secker; endeavourer after.
See, that you come
Not to woo honour, but to wed it; when The bravest questant shrinks, find what you seek,
That fame may cry you loud. Shakespeare.
QUESTION. n. f. [from question, Fr. questio, Latin.]
1. Interrogatory; any thing enquired.
Because he that knoweth least is fittest to ask questions, it is more reason for the entertainment of the time, that ye ask me questions, than that I ask you. Bacon.
2. Enquiry; disquisition.
It is to be put to question, whether it be lawful for christian princes to make an invasive war simply for the propagation of the faith. Bacon's Holy War.

5. Doubt; controversy; dispute.
This is not my writing,
Though I confess much like the character:
But out of question 'tis Maria's hand. Shakespeare.
'Tis time for him to shew himself, when his very being is called in question, and to come and judge the world, when men begin to doubt whether he made it. Tilleyson.
The doubt of their being native impressions on the mind, is stronger against these moral principles than the other; not that it brings their truth at all in question. Locke.
Our own earth would be barren and desolate, without the benign influence of the solar rays, which without question is true of all the other planets. Bentley.
6. Judicial trial.
But whoever be found guilty, the communion book hath surely deserved least to be called in question for this fault. Hooker, b. v. f. 31.
7. Examination by torture.
Such a presumption is only sufficient to put the person to the rack or questions, according to the civil law, and not bring him to condemnation. Ayliffe's Paragon.
8. State of being the subject of present enquiry.
If we being defendants do answer, that the ceremonies in question are godly, comely, decent, profitable for the church, their reply is childish and unorderly to say, that we demand the thing in question, and shew the poverty of our cause, the goodness whereof we are fain to beg that our adversaries would grant. Hooker, b. iv. f. 4.

QUE

- If he had said, it would purchase six shillings and threepence weighty money, he had proved the matter in question. Locke.
Nor are these assertions that dropped from their pens by chance, but delivered by them in places where they profess to state the points in question. Atterbury's Preface.
9. Endeavour; search. Not in use.
As it more concerns the Turk than Rhodes,
So may he with more facile question bear it;
For that it stands not in such warlike brace,
But altogether lacks the abilities
That Rhodes is dress'd in. Shakespeare.
To QUESTION. v. n. [from the noun.]
1. To enquire.
Suddenly out of this delightful dream
The man awoke, and would have question'd more;
But he would not endure the woful theme. Spenser.
He that questioneth much shall learn much, and content much; but especially if he apply his questions to the skill of the persons whom he asketh. Bacon's Essays.
2. To debate by interrogatories.
I pray you think you question with a Jew;
You may as well use question with the wolf,
Why he hath made the ewe bleat for the lamb. Shakespeare.
To QUESTION. v. a. [from questioner, Fr.]
1. To examine one by questions.
Question your royal thoughts, make the case yours;
Be now the father, and propose a son;
Hear your own dignity so much prophand;
And then imagine me taking your part,
And in your pow'r to silencing your son. Shakespeare.
But hark you, Kate,
I must not have you henceforth question me,
Whither I go. Shakespeare, Henry IV, p. i.
This construction is not so undubitably to be received, as not at all to be questioned. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
2. To doubt; to be uncertain of.
O impotent estate of human life!
Where fleeting joy does lasting doubt inspire,
And most we question what we most desire. Prior.
3. To have no confidence in; to mention as not to be trusted.
Be a design never so artificially laid, if it chanceth to be defeated by some cross accident, the man is then run down, his counsels derided, his prudence questioned, and his person despised. South's Sermons.
QUESTIONABLE. adj. [from question.]
1. Doubtful; disputable.
Your accustomed clemency will take in good worth, the offer of these my simple labours, bestowed for the necessary justification of laws heretofore made questionable, because not perfectly understood. Hooker's Dedication.

being questionable.
QUESTIONER. n. f. [from question.] An enquirer.
QUESTIONLESS. adv. [from question.] Certainly; without doubt.
Questions hence it comes that many were mistaken. Ral.
Questions duty moves not so much upon command as promise; now that which proposes the greatest and most suitable rewards to obedience, and the greatest punishments to disobedience, doubtless is the most likely to enforce the one and prevent the other. South.
QUESTMAN. n. f. [from quest, man, and monger.] Starter of QUESTMONGER. n. f. [from quest, man, and monger.] Starter of their principal working was upon penal laws, wherein

As heavy to me, as 'tis odious; but
The mistress which I serve, quicken what's dead,
And makes my labours pleasures. Shakespeare, Tempest.
To quicken with kissing; had my lips that power,
Thus would I wear them out. Shakespeare, Ant. and Cleop.
Fair soul, since to the fairest body join'd
You give such lively life, such *quicken*ing pow'r,
And influence of such celestial kind,
As keeps it still in youth's immortal flower. Davies.
He throws
His influence round, and kindles as he goes;
Hence flocks and herds, and men, and beasts and fowls
With breath are quicken'd, and attract their souls. Dryden.
2. To hasten; to accelerate.
You may sooner by imagination quicken or slack a motion, than raise or cease it; as it is easier to make a dog go faster, than to make him stand still. Bacon's Nat. Hist.
Others were appointed to consider of penal laws and proclamations in force, and to quicken the execution of the most principal. Hayward.
Though any commodity should shift hands never to fast, yet, if they did not cease to be any longer traffick, this would not at all make or quicken their vent. Locke.
3. To sharpen; to actuate; to excite.
Though my senses were astonish'd, my mind forced them to quicken themselves; because I had learnt of him, how little favour he is wont to shew in any matter of advantage. Stidney.
It was like a fruitful garden without an hedge, that *quicken*s
the appetite to enjoy so tempting a prize. South.
They endeavour by brandy to quicken their taste already extinguish'd. Tatler, N^o 57.
